The Mosaic Rooms launches a new Supper Club Programme with Lamees Ibrahim

The Mosaic Rooms is delighted to announce the launch of an exciting new programme celebrating the rich traditions of Middle Eastern cuisine through its Supper Clubs. The Clubs will offer guests an unique opportunity to experience and learn about authentic cuisine from the region, prepared by celebrated chefs. The programme starts this autumn with a focus on cuisine from Iraq and the Gulf.

Acclaimed author of The Iraqi Cookbook Lamees Ibrahim will host two special dining experiences: an Iraqi Lunch and an Iraqi Supper. With stories, discussions and demonstrations, guests will try their hand at several traditional recipes and enjoy a three-course meal of authentic Iraqi cuisine.

Upon making a booking, guests will be asked to send an email to reception@mosaicrooms.org so that we can provide them with the relevant supper club locations. These events are suitable for adults only.

Lamees Ibrahim was born in Baghdad. She came to London to study, obtaining a PhD from Kings College Hospital Medical School. London has been her permanent home since 1988. Lamees Ibrahim's first book The Iraqi Cookbook was published in 2009 to great success, with recipes featured on Guardian Online. Lamees is currently writing her second book and has begun hosting cookery classes and dinners due to popular demand.
